The Line (509d ff.)

Plato distinguishes four psychic states and labels them (in the Reeve translation) 'understanding', 'thought', 'belief', and 'imagination' (511d-e). What are the objects of each of these psychic states? For example, when the soul thinks, or has a thought, what in Plato's view is this thought about? To put it another way, what is the ontological correlate of each of these four epistemic states?

1. Understanding ?

2. Thought ?

3. Belief ?

4. Imagination ?
