

LING 200: Introduction to Linguistic Thought

Spring 2008, University of Washington

Supplemental Instructions for HW6, #13

You should survey at least 10 people. Record their age, hometown, gender, and occupation. Ask them to read each of the words listed on p. 437 (a-j). Then record their pronunciations for each word. After collecting all of the data, compare the results to see if you can make any generalizations based on region, age, occupation, or gender.

Be sure to hand in your data, together with your written summary. The data can be organized into a chart of the following type.

	Speaker1	Speaker2	Speaker3	Speaker10
--	-----------------	-----------------	----------------------	------------------

Age

Gender
