

University of Washington Integrative Medicine
Ronald Schneeweiss, MBChB

Ron Schneeweiss, MBChB, is a UW Professor of Family Medicine and Principal Investigator for the NIH, CAM Curriculum grant.

Dr. Schneeweiss joined the Department of Family Medicine in 1977 and has held leadership positions such as Residency Director, Head of the WWAMI Residency Network and past Chair of the Department (1990-98). Ron has his clinical practice at the UW Roosevelt Clinic. He is actively involved in teaching, and research. He has used hypnosis in his clinical practice over the past 30 years.

He is dedicated to ensuring that University of Washington medical students will have a deeper appreciation for the mind-body connection in illness and healing; a broader understanding of alternative healing approaches; and how to practice Integrative Medicine in their future careers as physicians.
